Numb. 24

TUESDAY, MARCH 29. 1743.

Copenhagen, March 23.

HIS Majesty spends a great Part of every Day in viewing his Troops, and in pushing on the military Preparations at his Docks and Arsenals. The Ships that are to go to Norway, in order to bring from thence the Seamen which are to man our Fleet, are ready to sail. As there was last Year scarce any Harvest at all in Norway, especially in the two Provinces of Drontheim and Aggerhus, where the Winter surpriz'd them while the Corn was on the Ground, his Majesty in the beginning of the hard Season took care to send a great Supply of Grain; and from the time the Sea has been open, he has caus'd to be transported thither 50 or 60,000 Quarter of Rye, to be distributed gratis among the People. There is a Passage in his Majesty's Letter to the Board of Treasury in relation to this Affair, which deserves to be written in Letters of Gold, and transmitted to latest Posterity. 'I am informed, says 'he, that all Embarkations at this time of the Year are 'attended with an extraordinary Expence; but upon this 'Occasion, I would have you reflect rather on the Mi'sery of those who are to be relieved, than on the 'Means of saving Money in relieving them.'

Franckfort, March 27. The Emperor is again much indispos'd, and the Princess, 2d Daughter to his Imperial Majesty, is fallen ill of the Small Pox; of which Distemper the Princess Teresa Emanuela, Daughter to Duke Ferdinand of Bavaria, and Niece to his Imperial Majesty, died at 7 o'Clock this Morning, exceedingly regretted by all the Court. As yet we know nothing with Certainty as to the march of the English, Austrian, and Hanoverian Troops, tho' great Quantities of Corn and Forage are bought up for them in this Neighbourhood, but as yet are not collected together, because it is not known where there Magazines will be. Our Court seems to be less alarm'd at this March than can be well accounted for, except from this Principle, that none of the Allies have the least personal Prejudice towards his Imperial Majesty, or any kind of Pretensions on his Dominions, so that we conclude, if the French are once obliged to abandon Bavaria, there must be an End of the War in Germany at least.

Cologne, March 29. The House of Odendorff, which was fitted up for the Reception of the Duke of Aremberg, is at present occupied by Veldt Marshal Neuperg, the Duke having fix'd his Head Quarters at Gelstorff. Our most Serene Electress sent several Officers to confer with both the Duke and the Marshal about quartering the Troops in such a manner as that they might be least burdensome to the People. But our Concern on this Head is now at an End, since it is certain, that the Earl of Stair has given Orders for the March of the English Troops towarps Mentz, on the Death of the Elector; which however gives us new Uneasiness, since it is a Step we did not expect, and which we are confident will surprize the Court of Franckfort, and all it's Allies. We are just now inform'd, that the Earl of Stair has sent Directions for erecting his grand Magazine at Costheim, a Village on the Meyn, a small Distance from where that River throws itself into the Rhine.

Berne, March 16. The Dutch Minister at Madrid having written to the Cantons, that the City of Geneva has actually nothing to fear from the Spaniards, we have countermanded that Body of Auxiliaries which we intended to march thither. They have, however, Orders to move directly towards the Valais, where it is resolved to assemble 12,000 Men; which, in Conjunction with the Inhabitants, will be a Force sufficient to prevent the Spaniards from penetrating that Way. This Expedition of theirs will for ever ruin their Interest with the Cantons, who are so incensed at the Manner in which this War has been carried on, and at the Report of Don Philip's being created Duke of Savoy, that they scarce keep any Measures towards the Agents of his Catholick Majesty.

Lyons, March 27. Great Magazines are forming in Dauphine, supposed to be for the Use of the Spanish Army, which can hardly subsist any longer in Savoy, and find the Passage of the Mountains impracticable. We hear they are going to raise heavy Impositions in Savoy, which looks as if they intended to take their Leave of it for good and all. It is said that, with the Assistance of our Troops, they will attempt to break into Piedmont on the Side of Brianson. We hear further, that the Officers of the Swiss Regiments in Don Philip's Army have received Orders from their respective Cantons to decline assisting the Spaniards in forcing a Passage thro' Valais, on pain of Banishment, and Forfeiture of their Estates.

Extract of a Private Letter, Paris, April 1, 1743.

'Since his Majesty has taken upon him the Administration without the Assistance of a First Minister, he 'sups constantly at half an Hour past Nine, confers regularly with all his Ministers at their stated Hours, hunts 'but three times a Week, and then suffers but one Set 'to be rous'd each Chace. So that Affairs move on much 'as they did.

'The Infantry of the King's Houshold, which began 'their March on the 18th, are gone to Sar-Louis, Metz, 'and Verdun. The Court is assembling in Provence, 'near Venais, on the Frontiers of Dauphine, a Body of '20,000 Men, which it is generally supposed are intend'ed to join the Army of Don Philip in Savoy. The 'Trains of Artillery preparing at Grenoble and Brianeon 'are intended for the same Army, and as soon as the Re'cruits expected from Spain arrive, we suppose the 'whole united Army will endeavour to penetrate into 'Italy. At least this is what the Spanish Faction positively give out, and what seems to confirm it, is the 'King's ordering 300,000 Livres to the Duke de Bouil'lon, for his Expences in his Journey to Madrid; which 'Journey, by this Appointment, seems to be nearer than 'most People imagin'd it.

'Our Court give out very confidently, that they have 'discover'd the whole Secret of Affairs in Germany; 'that the March of the Auxiliaries is in consequence of 'an Alliance lately signed between the Courts of Vienna, 'London, and Dresden, from which the latter, in con'sideration of its Junction with the two former, will 'reap considerable Advantages; and that as soon as the 'Plan of this Alliance was communicated to a certain 'Prince, he laid aside that Heat with which he declar'd 'before against seeing an Army of Strangers in the Em'pire on any Terms or Pretences whatever. However, 'it is given out we shall be able to baffle all their En'deavours, and this too without making the War gene'ral, which is what our Ministry unquestionably would 'avoid by all Means possible.

'A Report prevails that there is a Stranger of Distinc'tion at Versailles who daily confers with the Ministry, 'and is actually forming Preliminaries for a general Peace; 'but who he's from, whence he comes, or with what 'Powers vested, no body can tell. Her Majesty the 'Queen of Hungary has lately made the King a Present 'of several fine Horses, in return for a Pack of Hounds 'which were sent her from hence. M. Luynes, Bishop 'of Bayeux in Normandy, succeeds Card. Fleury in his 'Place in the French Academy.'

Private Letters from Dresden say, that Prince Maurice of Saxony arrived there on the 23d Instant, N. S. and that it was reported a Body of 15,000 Men would suddenly march into Bohemia.

The last Letters from Dusseldorp confirm the Report formerly mentioned; viz. That the Elector Palatine had recalled his Troops out of Bavaria; but this has been so often said, and again contradicted, that there is no giving entire Credit to it, till we are sure these Troops are on their March.

Her Hungarian Majesty has been pleased to give Leave to 1200 Sclavonians, who behaved extreamly well in the late Battle of Campo Santo, to return into their own Country; which they are to do on the Arrival of the Recruits, and are to rejoin the Army by the First of June.

The Shoreham Man of War, Capt. Broderick, from Jamaica, is arrived in the Downs.

The Bonaventure, Ward, from Exeter to Madeira and Carolina, was taken by the Spaniards near Madeira.

The Jupiter, Grose, from London to Africa, was taken by a Spanish Privateer, 70 Leagues West of the Lizard, and carried into St. Sebastians.

A Vessel from Ireland with 1600 Barrels of Butter, and another Vessel with 800 Bags of Corn, are taken by the Spaniards on the Coast of Portugal.

Five Ships bound home from Virginia, Carolina, and Jamaica, are taken by one Spanish Privateer belonging to the Groyne, off Cape Finister.

There are Two Privateers now cruizing from the Ports of Galicia, and Two more near ready to sail.

We hear from Bury, that at the Assizes held there Two Persons received Sentence of Death; viz. William Dodward, for breaking open a Drawer, and stealing 11 l. 5 s. from Mr. James Steward of Bury; and Robert Armstrong, for Horse-stealing; but the latter is reprieved.

A few Days since died at his House at Balam near Clapham in Surrey, John Heather, Esq; one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said County. He was blind for several Years before his Death, and was the oldest Commissioner of the Peace for the County.

On Sunday last died in an advanced Age, at her Lodgings in Scotland-Yard, Mrs. Vaughan, a Maiden Lady, and Aunt to the present Lord Viscount Lisburne.

Last Night the Dead Warrant came down, for executing the 13 Malefactors now under Sentence of Death in Newgate, on Monday Se'nnight.

On Sunday Evening died at her House in Austin Friers, Dame Mary Dutry, Wife to Gerard Van Neck, Esq; She was Daughter and Heiress of Hilary Renew, Esq; who came over from Bourdeaux to England in 1688, on account of the Persecution of the French Protestants; having brought with him a considerable Fortune, on which he liv'd many Years retir'd at Putney in Surry. His only Son dying without Issue, his whole Estate devolved to the said Dame Mary Dutry. She intermarried about the Year 1694 with Sir Dennis Dutry, Bart. who was created such in the Year 1716; and he dying without Issue, she married with the said Gerard Van Neck, Esq; in the Year 1734. Her Character was such in Life as must make her Loss irreparable, she being remarkable for her great Sweetness of Temper, her good and sound penetrating Judgment, her extensive and unlimited Good-nature and Charity, her uncommon Affability and Indulgence to all Persons; as she was the best of Wives, she made her Husband perfectly happy; and he, on his part, being of a Temper quite suitable to her's in regard to all her excellent Qualities, made her likewise the best of Husbands, and is inconsolable on account of her Death. She died an Ornament to her Sex, and a worthy Object of Imitation to all Persons.
